CREATIVE APPROACHES IN ST-CA

CONTENT

Schema Therapy (ST), developed by Jeffrey Young is an enhancement and development of cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) with a particular emphasis on the integration of emotional, attachment and developmental factors as central components of both assessment and therapy. ST is based on a model of schemas, modes and basic childhood needs that interact and evolve over the course of the lifespan, playing a key role in the development of psychological problems. Therefore, ST – as a technical and strategic variant of CBT – is a model which appears to be well suited to the field of child and adolescent therapy, with a range of powerful techniques that generate emotional, interpersonal, cognitive and behavioural transformation.

OBJECTIVES

The aim of this Online Conference is to present creative and age-appropriate approaches within the schema therapeutic framework for younger clients and their parental caregivers. These approaches provide clients with a better understanding of their own schemas, modes, and emotional needs and how they are linked to the difficult feelings and dysfunctional behaviours that they seek help for in therapy.
